specially-curated art collection. Technology is an integral part of the apartments, which feature state of the art appliances in the kitchen, entertainment gadgetry like iPod docking stations and satellite television in the lounge, and high-speed wireless internet. Completing the lavish feel of the apartments are the creature comforts infused throughout. From the plush carpets which line the floors and the beds decked out with luxurious linens and goose down duvets, to the pristine marble bathrooms, every effort has been made to ensure total comfort.

But Hong Kong Parkview is more than just a residential option; it's a statement-making lifestyle choice. The Spa and Resort offers members and residents access to a comprehensive selection of fitness and sporting amenities, including all-weather tennis courts, squash courts, and facilities for basketball, badminton and table tennis. The complex features a sophisticated and technologically advanced fitness centre, which is also one of the biggest private gyms in Hong Kong. Decked out with the best resistance and cardio equipment available, the centre offers residents the ability to work out under the supervision of knowledgeable instructors and personal trainers.

Facilities extend much further than the gym, however. There are jogging tracks that weave through the property's manicured gardens, a rock climbing area, a Games Zone for teenagers, the indoor Roman Baths, and outdoor swimming pools. If that's not enough, a full schedule of classes, everything from martial arts and tennis to dance and art, are a great way to meet other residents in a fun, interactive environment. The latest health offering at Parkview is the physiotherapy section. Operated in conjunction with MyoActive clinics, certified professional therapists offer physiotherapy appointments, as well as myotherapy and clinical pilates.

An array of fantastic restaurants adds to Parkview's lifestyle options. Ming Yuen serves authentic Cantonese cuisine like dim sum and regional and seasonal specialties like Peking duck, while Teppanyaki turns the humble Japanese steakhouse into an interactive fine-dining experience, and European food paired with great wines is the focus of George's, a rustic, intimate restaurant. For more casual dining, the Teahouse provides a great spot for international cuisine and tea amid one of the city's most lauded art collections, and on weekends, Oasis is the place to be. The only poolside-dining option at Parkview, it provides residents a chance to mingle over Saturday barbecues and Sunday brunches.

All this is accentuated by a full complement of services which make Hong Kong Parkview an even more convenient choice. Whether it's a last minute babysitter, valet service, limo transfers, or a large scale event, a knowledgeable concierge team is on hand to organise whatever you may need.

Offering a full lifestyle dressed in comfort, convenience and style, Hong Kong Parkview is your perfect Hong Kong address.
